

Tax Controversy and Litigation

Overview

The Tax Controversy and Litigation Practice Area brings decades of experience to the table when advising clients. Our attorneys have years of experience handling complex criminal and civil tax matters both at the state and federal levels.

We represent clients before the Internal Revenue Service's civil and criminal divisions, in U.S. Federal Courts, in the U.S. Tax Court, in the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals, in the Ohio Supreme Court and in the Indiana Tax Court.

From criminal tax fraud investigations to aggressive tax audits and tax collection proceedings, the strength and experience of our Tax Controversy and Litigation Practice Area helps bring client cases to a successful conclusion.

Our goal in every tax matter is to resolve issues quickly and effectively, at the earliest stage and, if possible, without litigation. In matters involving partnerships or corporations, we work directly with in-house counsel, in-house auditors, and all other members of the client's advisory team.

We assist individuals, small and large partnerships, and small and publicly-held, large corporations. The experience and integrity of our attorneys helps clients through the tremendous difficulties that accompany complex tax controversy matters.
