

Workers' Compensation Overview

The Workers' Compensation Practice Area offers clients experienced representation at all administrative levels as well as before the trial courts, state appellate courts, and the Ohio Supreme Court. The firm's attorneys also advise and represent clients on workers' compensation reform, insurance related concerns, and the overall administration of their workers' compensation programs.

The Workers' Compensation Practice Area has grown substantially over the past 25 years. A core staff of attorneys and paralegals dedicated exclusively to workers' compensation matters and a timely commitment to the practice group as a vital area of law has allowed us to consistently provide high quality and cost-effective representation to our clients.

The firm has over 11 attorneys in the practice area, spanning our offices in Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, and Cleveland. They work together with several additional attorneys who assist the group with specialized portions of the practice.

The Workers' Compensation Practice attorneys work closely with the nationally renowned Labor and Employment Practice at Taft. This is an important and distinctive advantage for our clients, given the substantial interplay between workers' compensation claims and a variety of employment law-related concerns.

The firm's Workers' Compensation clients are a diverse group. They represent a broad geographic area and all sectors of the economy including:

- finance
